AMUSEMENTS

Lamara Theater

At the Lamara theater, Valeska Suratt is making her premier in motion pictures, as far as Phoenix is concerned. This is the same Valeska of whom it has been told that upon visiting her own home town with her company and playing a sensational spectacular comic opera, she was sternly ordered by her mother, who was in the audience, to "go back there on that stage and put on some more clothes." However, there is no sort of objection along this line in the present pictures. On the contrary, Miss Suratt established a record by wearing 150 gowns through the picture of six thousand feet in length and wearing each one of them present to make all the women envious to turn some other color than pink with envy. The vehicle is "The Soul of Broadway." The picture will be shown today and Tuesday.

V. L. S. E. Feature at Empress

"The House of a Thousand Candles," a Solig Red Seal play, featuring Harry Mestayer, supported by Grace Darmond, John Charles and many other well known actors, will be shown at the Empress for the last time tonight. The plot revolves about an eccentric old quack who takes up usual means of forcing his grandson to marry the girl he wishes him to. The old man dies in the early part of the story, but in the last scene he appears, as healthy and happy as any of the other characters in the play. How this occurs is cleverly explained in the five reels of action which make up the film drama. Watch the Empress state fair programs.

Typoon at the Arizona

The Arizona will offer tonight for the last time "The Typoon," the vehicle in which Walker Whiteside starred and which ranked as one of America's foremost dramatic hits. The production was directed by Thomas H. Ince, who today ranks as one of the world's foremost motion picture directors.

Tomorrow the new bill will be "The Secret Orchard," in which Blanche Sweet plays the leading role. In this picture a feature extraordinary is promised, as it has caused a sensation in the east.

The South American travel pictures will also be shown for three days.

The Elopers

The classy girl show at the Columbia Theater, headed by Roy Clair, will tonight present what Mr. Clair claims to be the funniest farce ever written, entitled "The Elopers." The comedy is of a quality that every one must enjoy. With such numbers as "Wrap Me in a Bundle," by Duke Barker, the popular little candidate for queen of the fair, "Perfect Day," that beautiful little classic, will be used by Miss Wainwright, while Lew Dunbar will be the "The Angels' Rag Time Ball," and Duncan has a Rubie number in which he will be assisted by the girls. The girls will have another comedy number with the girls. The comedy is again in the hands of Clair, Duncan and Dunbar. On Thursday night the Clair company will present that great racing play, "A Thirty to One Show," a show full of comedy, pathos and romance.

Amus-U

Today will be the final screening of the "Millionaire Baby," a strong V. L. S. E. dramatic offering at the Amus-U, where it has obtained for a brace of nights. It is a sparkling story from the pen of Anna Catherine Green, and is said to have found excellent favor with the rapidly increasing clientele of the theater opposite the Boston store. Following the "Millionaire Baby" will come "The Way of the Transgressor," a drama of the period, with two comedy reels. The price remains the same at the Amus-U always and the "Warm Theater" is its new title.

At the Plaza

A big special will be shown at the Plaza for today only—Bob Leonard and Ella Hall in "The Silent Command," a smashing big drama with a wonderful cast and in four reels. Two good comedies will be shown in addition to the feature, making six classy reels for today's show. Sarah Bernhard will shortly appear at this house. Watch the papers for the dates.
